Choice Poetry.

A Regret.

I blame not that your courage failed,
That prudence over love prevailed:
It seemed that we must walk together
Rough ways through wild and stormy weather,
And you must have smooth paths to tread,
And skies all cloudless overhead.

Wise was your choice, the world will say,
That sees you fresh and fair to-day
As in the spring-time of your years,
Those hazel eyes undimmed with tears,
That forehead all unlined with care,
Nor streaked with gray that chestnut hair.

Yet if you could have dared to lay
Unfaltering hands in mine, and say,
"I trust you still, nor count the cost!"
Something, I doubt not, you had lost,
Yet found when all was told remain
To you and me some larger gain.

Not loveless nor unsweet my days;
I toil, nor miss some meed of praise;
Had you been with me they had known
The grace they lack, and thou hadst grown,
O weak but pure and tender heart;
To something nobler than thou art.

Ah! better had we both been laid
To rest forever, ere the shade
Of that cold worldliness had made
Division worse than death, and bade
Our souls be parted evermore,
Still strangers on the heavenly shore.

Miscellaneous.

A PISTOL SHOT.

FROM THE RECOLLECTIONS OF A RUSSIAN OFFICER.

[From the New Eclectic Magazine.]

Garrison life in a Russian provincial town, which does not possess a theatre, not even a bad one, is, you may take my word for it, very insipid and monotonous; in the morning, parades, two hours in the riding school; at noon, a frugal dinner at the regimental mess, or perhaps at a miserable restaurant; and at night, cards and bowling, voila tout. There was not a single family to extend their hospitalities to us. We treated each other at the wine and beer shop, and saw nothing of God's beautiful world but our own green uniforms.

There was but one person, who was not in the service, who associated with us, a man perhaps forty years of age. His varied information won for him a certain authority among us, but his sharp tongue and stern character did not favorably impress the young officers. A certain mystery surrounded him: he looked like a true Russian, and yet had a foreign name; he had served in the army, he said, but why he had quitted the service so early and withdrawn to such wretched quarters as Wologda, where life was both expensive and tedious, he never explained. No matter how bad the weather, he always went on foot, enveloped in a black worn-out paletot. For us officers he always kept an open table; there were, indeed, only two or three dishes, which his body servant and factotum prepared with very moderate skill, but as amends therefor, there was always an abundance of Burgundy and Champagne. No one knew his circumstances or his means of support, and no one ventured to ask him; all inquiries were repelled by his stern aspect. His library consisted for the most part of military works, besides the romances of Gogol and Turdenjeff which he willingly lent without ever asking for them again, as he himself never returned a borrowed book.

His only occupation was pistol practice and the walls of his room were pierced with holes like the interior of a beehive. A fine collection of beautiful and costly pistols formed the only decoration of his room, and his accuracy in shooting was so great that each of us would have allowed him to shoot an apple from our epaulettes without any hesitation. Although we often talked about duels, Sylvio—so he was called—never took part in the conversation, and if any one asked him if he had ever fought, he would curtly answer in the affirmative without further remark; but it was observed that the question was irksome to him; we all therefore came to the conclusion that his conscience, perhaps, tortured him, his dexterity having probably led to fatal results. In no event would any of us have taken him for a coward, as in this case his deportment forbade the suspicion. It was for this reason that the following occurence created no little astonishment.

A bout ten of us were taking supper one evening with Silvio; there was hard drinking as usual, and after supper we insisted upon our host being banker. He at first politely declined, but finally yielding to the wishes of his guests, he threw fifty ducats on the table, while we seated ourselves around it, and the play began. He continued, as usual, to play silently. Sylvio had never been noted as a generous player, and he was remarkable in always refusing to give any explanation; if he had ever made a mistake to the disadvantage of a player, he paid him without any hesitation; his own winnings he always noted on the table with a piece of chalk, as was his well known custom. But to-night there was a young officer in company who had lately joined the regiment, and did not know of Sylvio's peculiarities. This new comer played wildly; he made a bet and lost. Sylvio seized his chalk, and marked it down on the table. The lieutenant astonished, begged an explanation but as usual Sylvio went on quietly dealing; the lieutenant rubbed out the tally from the table. With the greatest calmness, Sylvio renewed it.

Heated with wine and excited by play and the laughter of his comrades; and imagining himself insulted by Sylvio, the lieutenant suddenly seized a candlestick from the table, and hurled it with blind passion at our host; he skillfully avoided it, and arose pale with wrath and with flaming eyes, while all of us kept an embarrassed silence.

"Leave the room, sir!" he cried "and be thankful that it is I to whom you have done this."

The lieutenant immediately arose and with the words: "If you feel yourself insulted, Sylvio, I am at your service," he departed.

We did not for a moment doubt but that this scene would have fatal consequences, and we already regarded our comrade as a dead man. We played only a short time longer; for when we saw that our host was giving no more attention to the game, we broke up and went home, speaking of nothing but the vacancy which would soon exist in the squadron.

The next morning as we met in the riding school we asked each other, "Is the lieutenant still alive?" But, behold the man came in as fresh as ever. To our astonishment, he had received no challenge from Sylvio.

With puzzled minds we then visited Sylvio, and found him in his court-yard, sending ball after ball through a card which he had nailed up against the stable door. He received us as if nothing had happened, and was silent about yesterday's occurrence. This conduct on the part of Sylvio caused him to fall in the estimation of the officers; for the lack of personal courage is deemed inexcusable by military men, among whom to be brave is the first virtue. This unpleasant affair was, however, gradually forgotten, and Sylvio recovered his former influence and position in our circle. I, alone, could not induce myself to regard him with my former feelings, Before this event my imagination had drawn me to this man, who appeared to be a mystery, and I think that he, too, preferred me to all the rest, for against me he never indulged in sarcasm as he often did with my comrades, but always treated me with great sincerity.

But after this occurrence, I never could banish the thought that his honor was stained. I could not look him fully in the face as formerly. Silvio's eyes were too sharp not to observe this; it pained him, and it seemed to me that on several occasions he tried to bring about an explanation, but I evaded it because it was painful to me, and so at last he desisted.

Dwellers in large cities can hardly understand what a sensation the most trifling affair makes in a small town. Thus the arrival of the mails throws a small town in commotion. Every Wednesday and Friday the headquarters of our regiment was filled with officers, one expecting money from home, another letters, and another newspapers, which soon became common property and were devoured with eagerness. They usually broke the seals of their letters on the spot, and shared the contents with their comrades. Sylvio also received his letters in our mail bag, and one day he received one which he broke open with great impatience. His eyes kindled as they glanced over it; but as every one was occupied with his own matters, his excitement was not remarked.

"Gentleman," he cried with an excited tone, "I shall leave here to-night, I therefore beg you to honor me at noon with your company for the last time. And you, too, captain," he said, turning to me. "I shall count on you." I bowed silently, and he departed. We dispersed, with the understanding that we would meet at noon at his rooms.

At the appointed hour I went there, and found my comrades already assembled. We went to dinner, and our agreeable host, to-day almost nervously cheerful, soon infected us all with his gay humor and the corks flew, the wine glasses were filled and emptied more rapidly every moment, and we all wished the departing one good luck on his journey. He took a friendly leave of each of his guests, and as I was also about to pay my respects, he detained me. "I beg you to stay a few moments, I have something to say to you alone."

I remained. We sat down in silence on his divan, smoking our chibouques. Sylvio's gaiety had disappeared, his face was deathly pale, but his eyes glowed through the cloud of smoke which he blew from him. So he continued for a few minutes, when he at last broke the silence which was becoming painful and disagreeable,

"Between us an explanation is necessary," he began in a hoarse, faltering voice; "for the opinion of the rest I care very little, but I like you, and I do not wish to depart leaving you under a false impression. You were certainly surprised that I did not call that swaggerer to account,—is it not true? And was that not also the reason why you withdrew from me? You will observe, captain, I could easily justify my conduct on the ground of magnanimity, but I never lie! Had I been in a position to meet him without any risk on my part, had my own life been exposed to no danger, I certainly should not have presented him with his."

Fairly shocked by such cynical candor, I stared at him. I had certainly not expected such an avowal from him.

"You look astonished," he continued; "but I was forced to act so. I had no right to expose my life, for six years ago I received a blow on the face, and he who gave it is still living."

My astonishment increased.

"And did not fight after such an insult?" I earnestly asked.

"Does an insuperable object keep you from your enemy?"

"Oh! I fought him and here is the proof." He took from a box an old hussar cap, which was perforated just above where the forehead would be when it was on. "Attend. I belonged to the Czar's own regiment, in which I was always accustomed to be first; and as then it was the fashion to bluster and bully. I was the greatest in the regiment. Hard drinking was considered glorious, and I vanquished the mad Dolgourcky, who was noted for his capasity. Duels took place every day in our regiment, and I was concerned in all of them, either as principal or second, so that my comrades esteemed me highly, but our colonel regarded me as an unmitigated evil to the regiment. I was already reposing proudly on these laurels, when a young Count was transferred to our corps. I have never seen a man more favored by fortune. Youth intelligence and beauty, were united in him, with great wealth. You can imagine what position he soon gained in our circle. I felt that my throne was beginning to totter. The Count soon heard my name mentioned everywhere; if the talk was of a wild, mad adventure, it was I who had led it; he became desirous to make my acquaintance, he sought my friendship: but I, jealous of my presumed rival, in the character of a lion, coldly repelled him. He took the repulse in good humor, but I, feeling injured, began to hate him. This troubled him little; but his success among my comrades, and with the ladies, set me almost wild. I sought to fix a quarrel on him, but he remained calm, answering my attacks with still wittier bons mots, and laughed me down; and, what was worst of all, he had all the laughers on his side. At last at a ball, which a nobleman in our neighborhood gave to our garrison, I could restrain my hatred no longer. I saw him there again, the petted darling of all the ladies, and especially of the lady of the house, with whom I considered myself the favorite. I could stand it no longer, and during a quadrille I whispered a brutal insult in his ear. This indeed he could not answer with a witticism, and—he struck me in the face. Several ladies fainted with terror: they separated us and we both left the ball-room.

"I stood at the rendezvous, awaiting with impatience my detested enemy. He came loitering up with his seconds, his sabre dangling from his shoulder, and carelessly eating cherries. The seconds loaded the weapons, and stepped off the distance. I had the first shot, but my heart beat so violently that I felt no longer certain of my aim. I said that I would forego my advantage; and as my antagonist did not oppose it, lots were drawn and fortune declared for him. He took a short aim, and his ball perforated my cap here. Now it was my turn. I eagerly scanned his face, with a hope of seeing symptoms of fear—in vain! He continued quietly eating his cherries, and shooting the stones toward me. This self-possesion only embittered me the more. What is the use of killing a man, I thought, who cares so little about life? A wicked thought struck me. I lowered my pistole and cried; 'I fear, Count, that you are not ready yet to meet God; as you relish your breakfast so wonderfully, I will wait till you have finished.'

"Oh, you do not disturb me in the least! Do as you please. You have the right to shoot at me, and you may fire sooner or later, as you please; it is indifferent to me.'

"Did you hear that?" I said turning to the seconds. 'If it is indifferent to this gentleman whether I fire sooner or later, then I will not shoot to-day.'

"The meeting was over. I resigned from the regiment, and came to this place. But every day I thought of my revenge; to-day it has come at last."

He drew a letter from his pocket which he had received in the morning. "I am informed that a certain person has lately married a young and beautiful woman, with whom he is madly in love. You suspect who the person is? This very day I will go to him, and will convince myself whether he can look death so smilingly in the face as when he ate the cherries."

With these words, he sprang up and paced the room with hurried steps, like a tiger in his cage. The servant announced that all was ready. Sylvio pressed my hand and sprang into the carriage which contained but two pieces of baggage, his portmanteau and pistol-case. He drove off at full speed.

Years passed on. I heard no more of Sylvio and had nearly forgotten him. I had long quitted the service, which brought me no laurels or promotion, and was living on my small estate in the Mohilrw'schen department. Although I attended to my own affairs, which consumed a great deal of my time, I still had many idle hours, when I missed the intercourse of my former life. But what was most difficult to accustom myself to, was the loneliness of the long winter nights. Up to dinner-time, I killed the day tolerably well! I went over the fields, talked to my bailiffs, inspected the new buildings, &c., but when the the sun went down, I did not know what to do with myself. The few books which I had found in the chests and cupboards had been read through long ago. I had heard to weariness the fables and ghost stories of my old housekeeper Kirolowa, and the songs of the peasants made me sad! and so in moments of despair, I even resorted to drinking. But that unfortunately gave me the headache, and I was also afraid of becoming a drunkard, the worst fate of all. I had no near neighbors, so I hit upon the plan of dining late and going early to bed. I thus lengthened the days, and shortened the long nights.

Four wersts distant from my estate was situated the castle of Count Belonskey, unfortunately inhabited at that time only by the castellan: the Countess had been there but once, for a month during the first year of her marriage. In the second spring of my tedious country life, a rumor spread all at once that the beautiful Countess would pass the summer with her husband at the castle, and, in fact, at the beginning of June they both arrived. The arrival of a rich neighbor in the country, where every one suffers from ennui, is an event of vast importance—a world-shaken occurence. The noble families of the neighborhood, their servants, and the peasants, could speak of nothing else for two months before the arrival of the Count, and for three months after his departure; indeed, I must confess that the intelligence of the arrival of the noble pair made my blood run quicker also: I burned with curiosity to see them. On the very first Sunday, I set out to pay my respects to their excellencies.

A gold-laced lackey in handsome livery conducted me to the Count's cabinet, which was furnished with the most tasteful elegance. Along the wall extended a row of large book-cases, each one adorned with a bronze bust of the author whose books it contained; over the marble mantle was a wide mirror, and the floor was covered with Turkish and Persian carpet. I had been so long unaccustomed in my little village to see such a display of wealth, that I must admit it to my shame, I felt embarrassed by it. With the agitation of a countryman approaching the minister with a petition and desiring an audience, I awaited the coming of my distinguished neighbor. The door opened, and a man of about thirty-five, with a noble and handsome countenance, entered the room. He approached me frankly and courteously, as I uttered a few words of excuse for taking the liberty; but he interrupted me at once: "No compliments, neighbor." We sat down, and his gay and unconstrained manner quickly banished my timidity, and I began to be myself again. The Countess now came in, and all my embarrassment returned. The Count introduced me, and the two, in order to give me time, conversed together freely, and treated me like an old acquaintance. In the meanwhile I opened the books on the table, looked at the pictures on the wall, one of which especially attracted my attention. It represented a Swiss landscape; but it was not the scene which the artist had painted, nor his skill which drew my gaze, but a mark in the canvas made by two bullets, one resting on the other. "That was a wonderful shot, Count!" I cried,

"Yes, and there is a remarkable circumstances connected with it. Are you a good shot?

"I am sure of hitting the ace of hearts at thirty paces."

"Really?" cried the Countess. "That shows great skill. Can you do it, Wasil?"

"There was a time, when I was in practice; but I have not touched a pistol for five years,"

"Then I will wager that you cannot hit the card at twenty paces. Such dexterity requires daily practice. The best shot that I know cut daily three bullets on the edge of a knife; if he saw a fly on the wall—Ah, you are smiling, gracious Countess, but I assure you that it is the exact truth."

"Ah? What was the man's name?"

"Sylvio, your Excellency."

"Have you known him?" cried the Count, springing from his chair. "Have you known him? You have known Sylvio?"

"Why should I not? We were friends; he lived in Wologda as my comrade. But for five years I have heard nothing of him. You then also are acquainted with him."

"Yes, I was. And if you were a friend of his, he has certainly told you of a curious story."

"Ah, ha, you mean the blow he once received?"

"I do. Did he tell you the name of the giver."

"No, your Excellency."

Struck by a sudden thought, I gazed at the Count. "Could it possibly have been you?"

"It was, and the bullets in the picture there are the last memorial of him."

"I beg you, Wasil, do not tell that story; I cannot bear to hear it."

"But I must, Nadejda. This gentleman knows that I once injured his friend; he must also learn how he avenged himself. It is five years ago since we were married. Our honeymoon was passed at this castle. I had ridden out one evening with the Countess, and was returning home, when her horse suddenly reared, and would not go further. She became frightened, sprang off, and throwing me the bridle, went home on foot. 'What can be the matter with the animal?' she said; 'it is usually so quiet and gentle. I almost fear that some misfortune is awaiting us at home. I laughed her out of it, as I went beside her, leading her horse by the bridle until we reached the castle. I noticed a strange droschke in the court yard, and inquired to whom it belonged. I was told that it belonged to a gentleman who had declined to give his name, and who was awaiting me in the cabinet. I went there. In the corner sat a long-bearded man covered with dust. I gazed at him inquiringly.

"You do not recognise me, Count?"

"Sylvio!!" I confess that my hair stood on end.

"It is my turn now!' he growled, drawing a pistol out of his case. 'Are you ready now?'

"I silently bowed, acknowledging his right, and measuring off ten paces, I placed myself in that corner, praying him to end it quickly before my wife should come in.

"I cannot see distinctly. Order lights to be brought."

"I rang, and they brought what he required. I placed myself for the second time in position. He took aim. I counted the seconds. Perhaps a minute passed—it seemed like a century to me. He said: 'No, I don't like this. I am not accustomed to fire at an unarmed man; we will therefore begin anew. Come, let us draw for the first shot.

"I was bewildered. I believe that I resisted at first; but lots were drawn from his perforated cap. I had again the first shot.

"You have excellent luck, my dear Count,' he said with a smile which I shall never forget. Then, I know not how it happened, I shot, and instead of my opponent, struck that picture there.

The face of the Count became deeply flushed, while that of the Countess grew deathly pale.

"Sylvio now raised his pistol," the Count continued, "and his manner told me that this time I had no pity to expect. The door all at once opened, and Nadejda rushed in with a cry, and threw herself on my breast. Her presence restored my self-possession. I broke out into a gay laugh: 'Silly one,' I said, 'do you not see that we are only in fun? There is a wager pending. How can you be such a coward? Go drink a glass of water, and come back again, I will introduce you to an old friend.'

"She looked anxiously and doubtingly at me. "I adjure you by your soul's future welfare,' she said, turning to Sylvio, 'is this only sport?"

"Certainly, beautiful Countess,' said Sylvio, sneeringly, 'nothing but mere sport. Your husband one fine evening struck me in the face out of sport! To-day, again out of sport, he missed his shot a second time; there is the ball intended for me in the picture. Now I intend having some sport myself.'

"With these words, he raised his pistol to the level of my heart. With a loud scream, Nadejda threw herself weeping at his feet.

"Are you not ashamed?' I cried to him, at this sight. "Shoot and make an end of it!"

"No," he said, uncocking his pistol, 'I have seen you tremble, you are afraid to die!'

"With this he went to the door, but on the threshold he turned towards this picture, cocked his pistol, and without taking aim, fired. That I might be sure of his unerring aim, he had driven his bullet upon mine. My people did not dare to detain him; in dumb terror, they let him depart. I have never seen Sylvio since; he re-entered the service, and fell, as I have heard, at Sebastopol."

PUNCHINELLO, a lively New York comic paper punches at the Indian Policy of the administration in this style:

Commissioner Piegan, of Montana, submits the outline of a treaty with the Indians, which embraces the following provisions (the embracing of provisions being strictly in character:)

1. No infant under three months of age, and no old man over one hundred and ten, to be killed by either party in battle.

All women to be killed on sight.

Where the small-pox is raging, the field to be left to the Small-Pox.

2. Presents to Indians to consist chiefly of arms, ammunition and whisky.

3. Liquor-sellers and apostles to be encouraged on equal terms.

4. Amateur sportsmen to be warned against killing Indians during the breeding season.

5. Quakers and Vincent Collyer to be assigned to duty at Washington.

6. Four months notice to be given of any intended attack on a White camp.

7. In scalping a lady, the rights of property in waterfall and switch to be sacredly regarded.

8. Declarations of love (during a campaign) to be submitted in writing.

9. The usual atrocities to be observed by both parties.

10. Hostilities to terminate when the last Indian lays down his tomahawk, (to take a drink,) unless sooner shot by his white brethren, or removed to a new reservation by the small-pox.

Action on this treaty is expected to take place in about ten years.

CLEANING COAT COLLARS.—For cleaning coat collars and all woolen goods, we recommend the soap tree bark, which can be procured at the drug stores. Break a piece about two inches square into small bits, and pour over it half a pint of boilling water; let it stand an hour or two, then sponge the collar well with the liquor: a second sponging with clear water will clean it nicely. Both washing and rinsing water should be as warm as for flannel. We have, by using this bark, washed black and blue Empress cloths successfully, and have cleaned hair cloth chairs which had been soiled by contact with the head.

AT a very successful seance in Cincinnati the other night, a man burst into tears when the medium described very accurately a tall, blue-eyed spirit standing by him, with light side whiskers and his hair parted in the middle. "Do you know him?" inquired a man at his side, in a sympathetic whisper. "Know him? I guess I do," replied the unhappy man, wiping his eyes. "He was engaged to my wife. If he hadn't a died he would have been her husband instead of me. Oh George, George," he murmured, in a voice choked with emotion, "why, why did you peg out?"

ALLUDING to the extreme modesty of General Geo. H. Thomas, the Indianapolis Journal says he was so indifferent to all the "pomp and circumstance of war," that though made a Major General on April 25th, he had no stars on his coat until after the battle of Stone River, eight months afterward; and they were put on by the strategy of his servant at the instigation of some members of the General's staff. He wore his Colonel's coat until the moment of taking command at Mill Spring though he had been a Brigadier General six months.

IT took the best government the world ever saw, five years to pay the men who captured Jefferson Davis what it promised them for that job, and then they were cheated out of a good share of it, and the officers got the balance. One young soldier in Wisconsin, who was in that crowd has been calculating on his share of the reward to set him up in business, and when he got it, after paying his lawyer he had just enough to buy a bushel of second class peanuts.

A Baltimore man offered to bet money that he could fill a lighted kerosene lamp. He filled the lamp and a six-foot coffin, and now the man he bet with wants the widow to pay the debt. Of course the widow cannot be held responsible for acts committed by her husband, when insane, as a man must be to commit such an act.

ELIGIBLE young bachelor—making call—"Well, Master Fred, you don't know who I am."

Too candid young hopeful—"Oh but I do though! You're the chap that ma says would make such a good catch for Mary."

JOSH BILLINGS on preaching: "I always advise short sermons, especially on a hot Sunday. If a minister kant strike ile in 40 minutes, he has either got a poor gimlet, or else he is boring in the wrong place."

Gin and Milk.

The inventor and, probably, the sole consumer of the above remarkable beverage is the Rev. Charles B. Smythe, a Presbyterian preacher, whose trial, on the charge of absorbing the said mixture, has recently taken place before a reverend body of his peers. From the facts brought forth during this trial, it appears that the Rev. Charles, did, on a certain Sunday morning, in company with two reporters of a "sensation" paper, enter a restaurant and then and there partake of gin and milk. The defence offered was, that he drank it as a medicine. Now this is doubtless a strong point and worthy of consideration, for it seems impossible that any well regulated stomach could have received such a heterodox dose as anything else but medicine. But why should the Rev. gentleman vex his system with so vile an admixture when the Pharmacopeia offers so much that is nasty and unpleasant, and why partake thereof in a restaurant, on Sunday, and with reporters of a "sensation" paper? Were these adjuncts necessary to render the dose additionally unpleasant? Mr. Smythe further states that he did not pay for the refreshing draught, not thinking it right and proper so to do, on the Sabbath. Now this is really very delicate. It was all right to go to the restaurant, step up to the bar and drink this beastly combination of uncombinable fluids, which even the reporters aforesaid could not swallow, but it was wrong to pay, afterwards. Oh! Smythe, Smythe, we should fancy you would blush at the sight of juniper berries and weep upon meeting a cow.

The Free Vote in Illinois.

In the Illinois Constitutional Convention, May 4th, 1870, the report of the Committee on Miscellaneous Corporations was considered, when the following important amendment to the Constitution, reported by the committee, was agreed to by a unanimous vote. Remarks in its favor were made by Mr. Medill, Mr. Browning, Mr. Coolbaugh and Mr. Haines of Lake:

"The General Assembly shall provide by law that in all elections for directors or managers of incorporated companies, every stockholder shall have the right to vote, in person or by proxy, for the number of shares of stock owned by him for as many persons as there are directors or managers to be elected, or to cumulate said shares and give one candidate as many votes as the number of directors or managers multiplied by his number of shares of stock shall equal, or to distribute them on the same principle among as many candidates as he shall think fit; and such directors or managers shall not be elected in any other manner after the adoption of this Constitution."

That means reform on an extensive scale in corporate action. Every incorporated company in Illinois is brought under the new plan of voting, thus securing just representation to the stockholders and striking an effectual blow at mismanagement, favoritism and corruption. Thanks to the good men of Illinois for this important step in the course of reform!

Indian Fighting.

In view of the recent hostilities between the whites and Indians and the imminent danger of a general war, it is not out of place to properly estimate the fighting qualifications of the red men. It has been stated, as coming from high military authority, that the 4000 available troops on the plains are fully equal to the 10,000 of their opponents, now in arms. This may be true and would be, doubtless, if a pitched battle were to be fought, but this is not the Indian method of warfare. They scatter and fight at long ranges, carefully avoiding actual collision in bodies, trusting to a harrassing system of night attacks and the cutting off of scouting parties and detached companies rather than a general engagement. It will take much time, trouble and expense, and many lives to subdue 10,000 determined savages, with an unlimited territory to roam over. It is not to be doubted, that the troops would eventually conquer, but the final accomplishment of the defeat and subjugation would not be a work of days nor one of little moment as many persons seem to imagine. It is always a weak point in an army to begin a war with too contemptible an opinion of the enemy.

Secretary Boutwell.

We do not believe that the people of the United States will, in time to come, look back upon the administration of Mr. Boutwell with anything like a feeling of pride, or assign to him a prominent position amongst financiers. The unanimous opinion on both sides of the Atlantic is, that as a Secretary of the Treasury he is a most decided failure. The reason is, not that Mr. Boutwell is designedly a mismanager of the finances, but that he lacks ability and decision. The orders issued from the Treasury in the morning are liable to be modified or recalled by noon, and by this vacillating, and undecided course he has succeeded in destroying all faith in him and frequently in inflicting serious injury to the markets. He is a representative of the class of second rate men appointed by Mr. Grant, whose strongest point is the selection of unfit and incapable politicians to fill important offices. Mr. Boutwell is immeasurably inferior to either Mr. Chase, Mr. Fessenden or Mr. McCulloch, having neither the natural ability, prudence or decision which they possessed.

THE following gentlemen of the Radical persuasion are desirous of being nominated for Governor of this State:

General Jno. F. Hartranft, Colonel L. H. Cake, Hon. G. Dawson, General Lemuel Todd, James H. Campbell, Wayne M'Veigh, John Cessna, Thos E. Cochran, Francis Jordan, J. M. Campbell, D. J. Morrell, Harry White, W. W. Ketchum, Horace Porter, James L. Graham, Geo. V. Laurence, Elisha W. Davis, E. Billingfelt, Wilmer Worthington, John Covode and J. W. Forney. Other announcements will be made in due time.

The French Election.

The vote on the plebiscitum which took place in France on Sunday last resulted in an overwhelming majority in its favor. The meaning of the word plebiscitum may not be known to some readers and we would say here that it is a law made by the people by direct vote without the intervention of the legislature. The following is the question which was submitted to the vote of the French people:

Will the people accept the liberal modifications of the constitution of 1852 on the following bases:

1. Responsibility of Ministers in presence of the Chambers.
2. Institution of two Legislative Chambers.
3. Restoration of the constituent power to the nation.

The majority in its favor will probably exceed five millions. Although nominally it purports to be in advocacy of liberal reform, yet its real object is to secure by a popular vote the national acceptance of the son of the present Emperor as the next occupant of the throne; in other words to guarantee his title as Napoleon IV. The plebiscitum is so cunningly worded, that those who are opposed to the Government, in voting against it are forced, by so doing, to vote as well against liberal reform.

The election passed off quietly, no disturbances having occurred even in disaffected districts. The vote was a large one, exceeding eight millions.

Somewhat Severe.

For fear some of our readers may intend to remove to Cincinnati, we publish the subjoined article, showing what frightful conditions of physical demoralization obtain in that city. One of the citizens having died suddenly, a physician after examination made the following report of the probable cause of death. We wonder that the unfortunate deceased held out as long as he did.

"It is evident, I think, that Mr. W. had a phlegmonous inflammation of the fauces, which involved the tonsils, the adjacent areolar tissue, the soft palate, the epiglottis, and the superior vocal cords. An œdematus state of the arytenoepiglottidean folds ensued, constituting that condition known as œdema of the glottis. The mode of death was by apnœa, a considerable increase in the effusion suddenly taking place while he was asleep."

Pennsylvania State Sunday School Convention.

The Annual Convention will be held at Harrisburg, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, June 14, 15, and 16. George H. Stuart, Esq., is expected to preside. Each Sunday-school in the State is requested to send two or more delegates. Pastors and Sunday school workers are also invited to attend and participate. It is requested that the names of those who expect to attend shall be sent to Rev. Thomas H. Robinson, D. D., Chairman, or John M. Sayford, Esq., Secretary, of the local committee of arrangements at Harrisburg, on or before the first day of June, so that places of entertainment may be provided.

Secretaries of county organizations are requested to immediately send their address to the State Secretary, Lewis D. Vail, Esq., 703 Sansom Street, Philadelphia, so as to receive printed details. Where there is no organization, the Secretary wishes to correspond with some earnest Sunday-school worker, and requests that his or her name be forwarded to him.

Pennsylvania Reserve Association.

The next annual meeting of the surviving officers and soldiers of the Pennsylvania Reserve Volunteer Corps, will be held on Tuesday May 17, at Lock Haven.

The orator of the day will be Col. Wm. B. Mann, of the 2d Regiment.

District associations and individual members desiring excursion tickets, will address Major John C. Harvey, Recording Secretary, Chesapeake Nail Works, Harrisburg, Pa., who has been negotiating with the Pennsylvania Central and Northern Central Railroads.

It is desirable to have as large a turn out as possible on the occasion, of the members of this grand old Division.

The Lock Haven boys have made great preparations for the reception of their old comrades, on the occasion.

WM. M'CANDLESS,
Vice President.

JOHN H. TAGGART,
Corresponding Secretary.

Destructive Fire in the Mountains.

WHITE HAVEN, Luzerne county, May 4, 1870.—Extensive fires have been burning in the mountains around this place for several days. To-day they approached the line of the railroad and caused some detention to the trains. Those that passed down the Lehigh had to run the gauntlet of flames and dense smoke. The large lumbering establishments of Thos. McKean and Stoddard, Braden & Co. caught fire and are still burning. It is estimated that in each of their piling yards there is 500.000 feet of lumber valued at $20 per thousand. There is no hope of saving any of it. Great fears are entertained that the numerous contiguous mills will be reached by the fire and destroyed. If the flames are not stayed before they reach the mills the whole town of White Haven will be placed in jeopardy. There has been no rain in this locality for some time, and everything combustible burns like tinder. It is supposed that the fire was started in the leaves and undergrowth of the forests by sparks from a passing locomotive.

Franking.

POSTMASTER CRESWELL would be able to reduce letter postage from three to two cents per half ounce if the franking business were abolished. It would manifestly, therefore, be greatly to the advantage of the public if the Senate passed the Bill, which the House sent to it, carrying out the proposed reform. But Senators do not like the idea of paying the postage on their own letters. The bill is to be quietly strangled. The public cannot reasonably expect to enjoy relief at the expense of its self-sacrificing representatives in Congress.—Times.

THE citizens of Helena, Montana, on Monday, proceeded in a very deliberate manner to try two prisoners, A. Lecompton and James Wilson, who confessed the robbery and attempted murder of a citizen on the 27th of April. A committee of twenty-four was named to try the case; a verdict was found at 2 P. M., and at 4 P. M. the prisoners were executed by hanging them to a tree.

Martial Law in Georgia.

Martial law in its most offensive form has been proclaimed in Georgia. The courts, State and Federal, are in full operation there, no insurrection exists, no calls for troops have been made, and yet a mere captain of infantry is now trying a citizen for his life. When the last Georgia bill was under discussion the United States Senate voted down every proposition authorizing the suspension of the writ of habeas corpus, and yet now, by mere brute force and violence, without the faintest color of law and without the least pretence of necessity, General Terry, in command of the troops stationed in Georgia, approves the ruffian behaviour of his subordinate, and tells him in so many words: "You will not permit the prisoner to be produced in Court, or admitted to bail, until decision in the premises is rendered at these head-quarters." The writ sued out in behalf of the kidnapped Georgian, has accordingly been denied. On Wednesday, Mr. Beck offered a resolution in the lower House of Congress, to inquire of General Grant the authority of this procedure, whereupon Mr. Shank objects, and the Radical majority, by sustaining that objection, stifles the call. So it has come to this, that the days of the Meade domination, when men were put in a sweat-box at Fort Pulaski to torture them into giving evidence against other men, have returned to Georgia, and Congress abets the wrong. It is rumored that Grant thinks the best thing that can be done with the State is to make it a permanent military province. Just as the reconstruction sore is healing, this man, and his backers in the House, tear open the ulcer, infuse into it new venom, and irritate all its pestilent humors anew. More than this; to enter the State of Georgia in time of profound peace, and drag a citizen before a military commission for his life is a direct insult and menace to every one in the United States. It revives the worst days of the "little bell," and betokens a lawless and ungovernable temper in the administration which threatens, if not checked, to do, at perhaps no very distant day, in Pennsylvania what it now does in the South.—Lancaster Intelligencer.

Where's Mercur?

A very pertinent enquiry is started, where is Mercur? Is he in attendance at Congress, or is he skulking like so many others? His former friends around here must not badger Ulysses too severely. It will be remembered that Bradford county, Mercur's home, has been noted in the past as a free-trade district. It received this name from the steady support it gave to Dave Wilmot, at the time, the most advanced free-trader in the State. Bradford Yankees for free-trade, and Columbia and Montour Radicals for a high tariff, places Ulysses in a peculiar position. No wonder he dodges. But he will ultimately straighten up matters. Sometime hence the American will be publishing Mercur's tariff speech, which he never delivered. Then how the Montour Rads will throw up their hats, and go off in an exstacy of delight. Mercur is cunning; knows how to throw dust, pull the wires, &c. If he is a pigmy in Congress, he stands a very "triton among the minnows" in this locality.—Intelligencer.

AN attempt at this early day to estimate the crop prospects of the year must of necessity prove in many respects unsatisfactory. There is a tendency in the bucolic mind to look at the dark side of the future, and the weather is generally too cold or too warm, too wet or too dry, to entirely meet the farmer's view of fitness. It is safe to allow a large margin for natural despondency. On the whole, so far as our exchanges indicate, the prospects for a good harvest are fair. The cold and open winter did some damage to winter wheat, but to this the heavy snow-storm of March affords a partial corrective, and in all parts of the country over which its protecting mantle was spread the crop will be unusually large. The Indiana papers are less despondent than a week or two ago, and, while some reluctantly concede the probabilities of an average yield, others believe that the harvest will be abundant. Missouri seems to have suffered more than her neighbors, but even there the prospect is not entirely discouraging. The mails from California speak cheeringly of the wheat crop, though a recent telegraphic despatch would seem to indicate that the continue d drought had effected a very decided change. The season, though late, has opened favorably for spring sowing and planting, but too many contingencies lie between seed-time and harvest for any estimate of the latter to be formed at present.—World.

NEW YORK, May 5.—Passengers who left San Francisco on the Pacific Railway, on Thursday 28th ult., at 8 A. M. reached this city at seven this morning, making 6 days and 23 hours in transit, the quickest time yet across the continent.

WILKESBARRE, May 6.—A disastrous fire broke out between twelve and one o'clock this morning, destroying some half a dozen barns and outbuildings. The extensive livery stable of P. Corniff, in which were thirty-one horses, two cows and a lot of pigs, was entirely destroyed. None of the stock was saved. One pair of horses were valued at $1,500. Loss cannot now be ascertained. Partially insured.

POTTSVILLE, Pa , May 6.—It is understood from a reliable source that a final and determined secret movement is on foot among the leaders of the present strike to persuade the Lehigh and Wyoming men to join them. They are becoming convinced that unless other regions suspend they cannot succeed.

The operators are stronger and more confident. Some of them say that the men must resume work within three weeks. If the movement to bring about a suspension in Lehigh and Wyoming fails, a decline in the price of coal may be looked for, and a partial if not a general resumption of work in Schuylkill county will take place.

Congress.

THURSDAY, May 5.—In the Senate, yesterday, a debate on the House resolution for final adjournment on July 4, occupied the whole of the morning hour, and the resolution went over without action. A number of bills were disposed of, among them the House joint resolution to pay the widow of the late Gen. Rawlins one year's salary as Secretary of War, which was passed. A bill was introduced to incorporate the International Society of the United States for the protection of immigration.

In the House, the Tariff debate was resumed soon after 12 o'clock, and the section relating to steel rails and Bessemer steel was further discussed. The duties were finally fixed as follows: On railway bars composed wholly of steel, two cents per pound; partly of steel, one and a half cents per pound; Bessemer steel, $36 per ton.

FRIDAY, May 6.—In the Senate, yesterday, reports from committees were received as follows: Proposing indefinite postponement of the bill for a pension for Mrs. Lincoln; recommending the bills authorizing a lease of building in this City for military uses; adversely on the bill regulating importation of immigrants under labor contracts. The Senate adjourned at 5 o'clock.

In the House, but comparatively little business was transacted. The Civil Service bill was further discussed, and, finally, with the amendments offered, was on motion of Mr. Jenckes, recommitted.

SATURDAY, May 7.—In the Senate, a bill was reported to secure equal rights in the District. The legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation bill was considered until the hour of adjournment.

The House was not in session.

TUESDAY, May 10.—In the Senate yesterday Mr. Morrill, of Vermont, was permitted to call up the bill to reduce taxation, in order to afford him an opportunity to speak upon it, in view of his premeditated absence when the subject shall be considered. He spoke two hours and a half, directing attention to the subject of dispensing with direct taxation and the adoption of a tariff for the purpose of revenue and protection. The bill to extend the time for presentation of claims for bounty, under the act of July 20, 1866, was reported with amendments. The Appropriation Bill was taken up and the amendment to reduce the appropriation for the Bureau of Education was debated at length, and the question was raised of the advisability of continuing the existence of that Bureau and the Bureau of Statistics.

The House, owing to a prevailing understanding among the members that no session was to be held, yesterday, adjourned without transacting any business.

WEDNESDAY, May 11.—In the Senate a bill was reported from committee to provide for refunding certain duties imposed on the importation of Russian hemp. The army bill was called up and discussed, as was also the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation bill.

In the House Joseph H. Lewis, member elect from Third Kentucky district, was sworn in. The Northern Pacific Railroad bill was taken up.

Latest News.

SIOUX CITY, May 3.—Parties arriving from Fort Sully report that the Cheyenne agency is in full possession of the Indians. The party attempted to land, but were ordered off by the Sarapes, who fired over their heads. Major Randall and comrades are prisoners. The Sarapes have killed a large number of cattle, the carcasses of which can be seen lying along the river banks.

ST. LOUIS, May 3.—Col. A. Payne and M. C. Stapleton, two influential citizens of Monticello, Kansas, quarreled and agreed to settle the difficulty in a dark room, Payne with a knife and Stapleton with a revolver. Stapleton's throat was cut and Payne was shot through the lungs. Neither are expected to recover.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Gen. Sheridan telegraphs Gen. Sherman that the Indians have taken posession of several of the small forts near Fort Sully, and have made prisoners of the commandants. Gen. Sheridan has again left for the front. Mr. Vincent Collyer, Secretary to the Indian Peace Commission, fears that war is inevitable.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Daniel Drew proposes to give another million to the Drew Theological Seminary to endow a literary department and make it a University.

ASHLAND, May 8.—A great fire occurred at Ashland to-day. Eleven houses were burned to the ground, and fourteen families have been rendered houseless.

NEW YORK, May 10.—The jury in the M'Farland case returned a verdict of not guilty, which was greeted with much enthusiasm, and M'Farland was discharged from custody.

TOWANDA, May 10.—A free trade meeting was held in Towanda last night. Major Charles H. Schriner spoke in the court house, on the tariff, two hours, in reply to Judge Kelley, and was applauded by a large audience.

NEW ORLEANS, May 10.—The prize-fight which took place near Lunersville to day, between Jem Mace, ex-champion of England, and Tom Allen, resulted in a victory for the former. The fight lasted fifty seven minutes, with only ten rounds, when Allen's shoulder was discovered to be out of joint.

NEWSPAPERS AND INTELLIGENCE.—Wherever I have wandered in my missionary labors, whether in the East or West, North or South, I have always observed that where the newspaper was taken by the family, there thrift, morality and general intelligence were to be found. In the log cabins of the West, as soon as my eye caught sight of the newspaper, I thought to myself; "Here at least I will find morality, intelligence, courtesy, and welcome, as well as a garden ripe to receive the gospel seed!" and I was seldom mistaken. On the contrary, where neither newspapers nor good looks were to be seen, there ignorance, bigotry, superstition and grossness were found in all their forms. Yes, I have often thought that the newspaper was the pioneer of civilization, and did much to make the way easy for the successful labors of the home missionary.—Exchange.

Lines on the Death of Jennie.

Now our darling Jennie's sleeping in the cold and silent grave,
She has left us, darling treasure, for cold Jourdan's storm to brave,
She has braved it', she has braved it', though the storm was raging high,
Says she, "mother you can spare me, I am not afraid to die."

Lo, the mother gently whispers "Jennie dear Why talk you so?
Ma would not know how to spare you, unless God wills that you should go;"
But the angels came and took her to the mansion of the blest;
"Farewell, parents and little brother, I am leaning on Jesus' breast."

"Dearest parents, all through sickness you have watched my feeble way,
And I thank you for your kindness, though with you I cannot stay;
But dear parents how much I love you that no mortal soul doth know,
And you too, dear little brother, but Jesus calls me, I must go."

"But dear parents come and meet me at my blessed heavenly home,
And teach dear brother to love Jesus, for he says all such shall come;
Kiss me quick, my dearest parents for my breath is going fast,
And let me kiss my little brother, for this kiss will be the last.
ELLA.

CONSTITUTION.

ARTICLE I.—NAME.

The name, style, and title of the Association shall be the Columbia County Co-operative Relief Association.

ARTICLE II.—OBJECT.

The object of the Association shall be the relief of Fathers, Mothers, Widows and Orphans of deceased members.

ARTICLE III.—MEMBERSHIP.

Sec. 1. The requisite qualifications for membership are, that the applicant shall be in good health, hale, and sound.

Sec. 2. All applications for membership shall be made in writing or in person, the applicant setting forth his name, age, occupation, residence, and paying his initiation fee. The applicant must further produce a medical certificate certifying that he is a fit person to become a member.

ARTICLE IV.—MANAGEMENT.

The business of the Association shall be conducted by five Trustees who shall be annually elected at the regular stated meeting of the Association in October of each year.

ARTICLE V.—OFFICERS.

At the first meeting of the Trustees in each year, they shall elect a President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer to serve the ensuing year.

ARTICLE VI.—FUND.

In order to secure stability to the Association there shall be raised a permanent fund, the interest of which shall be applied, 1st to the current expenses; 2d to the mothers, widows and heirs of deceased members. The raising of said fund to be provided for in the By-Laws.

ARTICLE VII.

All motions to amend the Constitution shall be made in writing, and by the consent of four fifths of the Trustees. If the amendment is approved at a subsequent meeting by four-fifths of the Trustees, application shall be made to the Court to have said amendment allowed.

BY-LAWS.

TRUSTEES.

1st. The property and business of this Association shall be controlled by five Trustees, who shall be elected by ballot at the annual meeting of the Association to be held on the first Monday of October, in each year.

2d. For the purpose of such election the Trustees for the time being, shall determine the place and hours for opening and closing the polls, and advertise the same for ten days prior thereto, and the Secretary shall also notify such Trustees in writing of such election.

3d. The Trustees shall hold stated meetings at the office of the Association, in the Town of Espy, on the third Monday of January, April, July and October. Special meetings may be called by the President at his discretion or by any three of the Trustees.

4th. Three Trustees shall constitute a quorum to transact business.

OFFICERS.

5th. The officers, of this Association, shall be a President, a Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer, and such other officers, clerks and agents, as may be necessary. The President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer shall be elected by the Trustees and hold office for one year.

DUTIES OF OFFICERS.

6th. The President, shall preside at all meetings of the Board of Trustees, and shall have the chief management and control of the business of the Association. All contracts on behalf of the Association shall be made by him or under his authority. He shall see that proper records of the business and transactions of the Association are kept. He shall appoint all employees and may remove them at pleasure.

He shall see that a deposit of all moneys shall be made from time to time in such Bank or Banks, as the Trustees may direct. He shall annually prepare and submit to the Association at their annual meeting in October, an account of the business of the Association for the preceding year, and a statement of the assets and liabilities of the Association. All vacancies in the Board of Trustees shall be filled by appointment by the President.

The Vice President shall in the absence or disability of the President act in his place.

SECRETARY.

7th. The Secretary shall keep the accounts of the Association, and a record of all persons employed. He shall keep the minutes of the Board of Trustees; notify the Trustees of all Meetings; communicate to officers, Agents, Committees, &c., all resolves and orders affecting them in the discharge of their duties, and perform such other duties and services as may be required under the direction of the President.

THE TREASURER.

8th. The Treasurer shall receive all moneys of the Association and deposit the same in such Bank or Banks, designated by the Board of Trustees. After paying the current expenses the balance shall be securely invested as the Board of Trustees may direct. He shall make all investments pursuant to instructions of the Board of Trustees.

It shall further be the duty of the Treasurer to take charge of all properties of the Association and to collect all dividends, interest, rentals, &c., that may accrue from such investments, and place the same to the credit of the Association. He shall also give such Bonds as the Trustees may from time to time require.

9th. All powers and duties, not herein delegated to particular officers, shall be exercised and discharged by the President during the recess of the Board of Trustees.

10th. All persons between the ages of [...] ty and fifty years, inclusive, may be admitted by making proper application according to the following form:

Columbia County Co-operative Relief Association, Espy, Pa.:

The undersigned desires to become a member of the above Association and subscribes to the following regulations:

1st. To pay five dollars into the Treasury at the time of making this application, and one dollar on or before the 1st day of January each year thereafter and five dollars and [...] cents within thirty days after the death of a member, due notice having been given by the Secretary, so long as the Association numbers one thousand or less; after reaching one thousand, and, the payments at the death of a member shall be proportionately less so that no policy holder shall receive more than five thousand dollars. To keep the Secretary informed of his or her place of residence, and in case of absence from or change in his or her residence to appoint some one to act as his or her agent to pay the [...]

Failing to observe any of the above rules, I hereby agree to forfeit all claims against and all moneys previously paid to this Association.

Inclosed please find five dollars as my Membership Fee.

Signed,

Town,

County,

State,

Age,

Occupation,

In favor of Whom,

I [...] do hereby certify that [...] is in good health [...] with no disease likely to prove fatal, and is a fit applicant for membership, in the Columbia County Co-operative Relief Association.

Signed,

11th. Each member shall be furnished with a certificate of Membership and an annual receipt upon payment of his yearly dues to the Association, together with a receipt for the amount assessed upon the death of each member when said amount is paid.

12th. Any member failing to pay the five dollars and ten cents within thirty days after notice forfeits all prior payments and ceases to be a member of the Association.

13th. In case a member dies leaving no widow or other person entitled to the benefits of the Association, the money shall become the property of the Association except an amount sufficient for funeral expenses.

14th. All questions shall be decided by a majority of the Trustees present at any meeting, and the yeas and nays shall be recorded at the demand of any two of the Trustees. In case of a tie vote the presiding officer shall have the casting vote.

15th. These By-Laws may be altered or amended at any meeting of the Association, by three fourths of the members present concurring, provided that due notice be given of such proposed change at least for six weeks previous to the meeting of the Association.

16th. The Board of Trustees and officers shall receive such compensation for their services as the Board may determine.

17th. The fee for medical examination shall be one dollar ($1) to be paid by the applicant to the Medical Examiner at the time the certificate is given.

The Columbian.

Bloomsburg, Friday, May 13, 1870.

CENSUS.—We learn that T. J. Morris, Elisha Hayman and B. S. Werkheiser have been appointed as Census takers for this County.

ESPY SAVING FUND.—The money in the Espy Saving Fund at their last meeting sold at 102 premium, which is a very good price.

A CHILD beginning to read becomes delighted with newspapers because he reads names which are familiar, and he will progress accordingly. A newspaper in one year is worth a quarter's schooling.

THE RUINS.—Wm. H. Gilmore has taken the contract for removing the rubbish from the ruins of the late fire. It would be a good thing if this stuff could be dumped in such places as require filling up and thus save a future expense to the town.

B. M. B. & L. ASSOCIATION.—Money sold at last meeting, Saturday, 7th inst., as follows, viz: Three shares at premium of $80 per share, two shares at premium of $66 per share, and twelve shares at $59 premium. Upwards of $500, was paid into the Association. Value of stock $12.30 per share.

THANKS.—We are under many obligations to Hon. F. Jordan, Secretary of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, for a copy of the general laws passed at the last session of the Legislature. This custom of supplying the Press with this important document we believe originated with Mr. Jordan.

THE law of evidence in this State has been so amended as to allow the testimony of either husband or wife to be given in his or her own behalf in any proceeding in divorce where either personal service of the subpoena is made on the opposite party, or where either may appear and defend.

SEWING MACHINES.—The Act of the Legislature of 1869 exempting sewing machines belonging to seamstresses from levy and sale on execution or distress for rent, by a late act has been extended to all sewing machines used and owned by private families, except to persons who keep them for sale or hire.

FESTIVAL.—One of the classes of young ladies, belonging to the Sunday School of St. Paul's Episcopal Church intend holding an Ice Cream Festival on Saturday night of this week. The proceeds are to be devoted to finishing the new Church building.

MOIST.—In our last issue we took occasion to complain of the dust. We take it all back. We are no longer troubled in that way. The few past days have been so full of dampness that where last week was dust are now mud puddles. This doubtless is good for the crops and we are therefore pleased.

NOTICE TO CANDIDATES.—Candidates for our different District and County offices who wish their names announced for the different offices to be filled at the coming elections should send in their names at once accompanied with $3.00 cash, without which no name will be announced. We desire to announce them all at the same time

A BIG BIRD.—Mr. H. A. Schweppenheiser of Centre township is the owner of a turkey 20 months old which weighs 40 pounds, and this too, without any effort being made to fatten the bird. It is thought that by Fall, this weight will be increased to 50 pounds. Has any one got anything in the turkey line to beat this?

PATENT OUTSIDES.—The Hazleton Sentinel, which our neighbor Sanders takes charge of, has "patent outsides," that is, the outside of his paper is printed in Chicago, or some other Western city, and the inside at Hazleton. Half the paper is edited and controlled by himself, and the other half by strangers. We don't like the system, however profitable it may be to the publisher.

THE OLD STORY.—The Republican this week, as usual, republishes the Court proceedings furnished our readers last week, and without a line of credit. We give this week a further instalment which our enterprising neighbor will undoubtedly steal as usual. Republicans who want early news may have THE COLUMBIAN for $2.00 per annum, payable in advance.

CAPT. E. GODFREY REHRER, whose mysterious disappearance created such an excitement in Schuylkill county, and on account of which some persons had to leave Schuylkill county charged with being his murderers, and who subsequently turned up in the Marine service at Washington, is now in Tamaqua, to which he returned a few days ago. Several mines were pumped with a view of finding his body.

OUR late Court was one of moderate length. The jurors were all discharged by the middle of the fourth day, the trial list having been exhausted. Court for the September term was ordered for one week. Little business for Grand Jurors; little for the Traverse Jurors, little for the Judges! All which is very well and we may hope will long continue.

THE BERWICK GAZETTE.—We have been informed that while Mr. Sanders is still the owner of this paper, the immediate supervision of its columns will be under a Mr. Morehead, formerly an employee of Jackson & Woodin, and of course a Radical. Under the circumstances we presume the Gazette will cease to be a Democratic newspaper, and will either become Radical or else remain neutral, which would leave THE COLUMBIAN the only Democratic paper in the county.

OUR COUNTY CONVENTION.—There seems to be some misunderstanding among our readers as to the time when the next Democratic County Convention meets. The rules of 1851 fixed the time for the Convention on the last Monday in August, and the time for the delegate election the Saturday previous. In 1866 the annual Convention changed the time to the first Monday in August, which rule remains unchanged to this day. Last year a resolution was offered on the subject, but was not acted on.

RAIL-ROAD CONTROVERSY.—In our last issue we gave some of the details of the difficulty between the Catawissa R. R. Co. and Danville, Hazleton and Wilkesbarre R. R. Co. The hearing as announced, came off on Saturday last, at Philadelphia, before Judge Read, and after argument the injunction was dissolved, and Robert H. Sayre, Esq., Engineer of the Lehigh Valley R. R., was agreed upon as engineer to examine the locality, and to report whether the proposed road should pass under or above the Catawissa R. R., or at grade, and at what point.

ACCIDENT.—On Saturday night last, as Mr. Samuel Neyhard, of Centre township was driving down Market street on his way home, he turned the corner at McKelvy Neal & Co.'s store too sharply, and thereby drove off of the end of the bridge which crosses the gutter at that point. The buggy was overturned, throwing out himself, his wife and baby. The baby was picked up almost under the horse's hoofs and Mrs. Neyhard we understand, was thrown partially under the animal. With the exceptions of some bruises received by Mrs. Neyhard, no injuries were inflicted. It was certainly a very fortunate and remarkable escape.

THE Boston Traveller says: "The ship Thomas Pope has just cleared this port, (Boston) with nine missionaries, and a cargo of 29,000 gals. of New England Rum, for Africa."

DOGS BEWARE.—Uncle Sam is after you with a sharp stick in the way of taxation. One day last week Mr. Reeves introduced a resolution into the House of Representatives at Washington, to tax dogs $2.50 each. This will be rough upon some of our two-legged curs.

THE Avondale mines, at which on September 6th, 1869 the breakers were burned and 110 men and boys smothered, has just gone into operation again. A new breaker, with the necessary buildings and machinery, has been constructed at an expense of $80,000 and an air shaft, 96 feet in depth has been sunk at a distance of 150 feet from the mouth of the shaft. In addition, a tunnel has been driven from the Avondale to the Union mines, a distance of 646 feet. The air shaft cost over $3000, and the tunnel about $4000.

THAT BULLETIN BOARD.—Our neighbor, without consulting the parties interested, has placed on the side walk (and made himself liable to an indictment for erecting and maintaining a nuisance) a couple of nondescript machines which he calls bulletin boards,—painted black in honor of the XVth Amendment,—and on which is placed a solitary poster, the only one done in that establishment for a month. We have put up a white one,—much to his chagrin—in a more prominent place—and yet where it does not interfere with the public, nor the rights of private parties. Hence these tears.

THE PROPOSED NEW R. R.—The people along the proposed new rail road between here and Muncy are not only deeply interested in its completion, but are doing every thing in their power to secure that result. Not only are they donating the right of way, and contributing all the ties needed, but large quantities of stock will be taken. The road seems to us to be a necessary one, not only because it shortens our communications with the West Branch, but because it opens up to the market a valuable and inaccessible region of country. We desire to see the road speedily completed.

SOME individual proposes that instead of licensing liquor dealers the persons who drink should be made to take out a license. His idea is, at least, original. Hear him:

No man should be entitled to drink unless he first get a license; and any barkeeper who should sell to an unlicensed party, should be subject to fine and imprisonment. The license should be annual; and the sum charged should be from twenty to one hundred dollars. No young man should be allowed a license till he was sixteen, and then until twenty-one years of age only beer license at a moderate charge. After twenty one he should vote, drink, and chew tobacco on payment of license, and the same privilege should be extended to strong minded women.

DARING THEFT.—A robbery of singular boldness, hitherto unknown outside of the large towns, occurred in this place on Friday last, in broad day light, at the store of Louis Bernhard, Watchmaker. Mr. Bernhard had occasion to leave the store for a short time and left a boy in charge. The boy stood on the sidewalk in front of the door, and whilst his attention was attracted elsewhere for a moment, some person entered the store and took a valuable watch from the nail where it had been hung after undergoing repairs and succeeded in escaping without detection. The loss was discovered when the owner called for his property. There is no clue to this daring thief.

AMENDED GAME LAW.—The last Legislature made the following amendments to our present game law, to which we would call the attention of all sportsmen: That in section first of the act, providing for the taking of game, approved April first, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine, the word "thirty" be stricken out, so that the section shall read "the twentieth day of December, in any year, and the first day of September in any year following."

SEC. 2. That in section fourth of the act, providing for the taking of game, approved April first, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine, the words, "fourth day of July" be stricken out, so that the section shall read "the fifteenth day of November and the first day of September in any year."

SEC. 3. No person shall kill, capture, take, or have in his or her possession, any gray snipe or English snipe, between the fifteenth day of November and the first day of September, under a penalty of five dollars for each and every bird so killed or had in possession, or exposed for sale.

OUR new town organization commences its career under some unfavorable circumstances which are to be regretted. It inherits from the old township a debt of some magnitude, the immediate payment of which, out of the taxes of the present year, will be inconvenient and will delay improvements. There is an old Poor debt due, exceeding $5,000, and a balance due upon road expenditures of last year of several hundred dollars. Then there is the question of damages for opening several streets. Proceedings were in progress for opening them before the town was incorporated, but were not then completed. We are not familiar enough with the facts and the law, to understand where pecuniary liability will fall in those cases—whether the damages will be paid by the town or by the County. Of course in future cases of opening streets in the settled parts of the town, the damages to be paid will be a local burden. The old Poor debt, as we believe, rests upon Bloomsburg alone and not upon the Bloom Poor District in which several townships are included.

TOWN COUNCIL.—A meeting of the Council was held on Saturday last at the Court House, all the members being present. In the matter of the draft or plot of the town of Bloomsburg, which is required by law to be made, the offer of Mr. Samuel Neyhard was considered and finally accepted. He is to receive $5 for each day actually employed. The By-Laws, seventeen in number, which had been prepared were then read and adopted separately. A resolution was adopted authorizing the Town Treasurer to deposite moneys belonging to the town in the First National Bank of Bloomsburg, without incurring personal responsibility for their safe keeping. A resolution was also adopted conferring on Constable M. C. Woodward authority to act as High Constable of the town, during his present term of office. Tuesday the 24th of May was fixed as the time for hearing appeals from classification in the assessment list. The Council will meet on that day in the Grand Jury room of the Court House at 10 o'clock a. m. for this purpose. On motion, the corporate seal submitted to the Council, was approved and adopted. After the appointment of a Committee to draft ordinances the Council adjourned to meet at the Court House on Wednesday, May 11th, at 7½ o'clock p. m.

Council met Wednesday evening in the Court House, all the members present except Mr. Sharpless. Four additional By-Laws were read and adopted. The President was authorized to contract with W. H. Gilmore, to have the rubbish from the Hotel ruins used for filling up low ground on Fourth Street where necessary, at a cost not exceeding fifty dollars. Messrs. Sharpless, Knorr and Barton were appointed a Committee to provide a suitable room for a Lockup and also to secure ground and erect a Public Pound. Adjourned to meet on Friday evening, May 13th.

BRIDGE NOTICE.—We call attention to a Bridge Notice of the Commissioners to be found in our advertising columns.

JOHN J. WAGGONSELLER, of Bloomsburg, Pa. has purchased a small farm —50 acres—situated about two miles from the city. He purposes improving it at once.—North Carolinian.

COMMONWEALTH vs GEORGE W. EDGAR.—In Quarter Sessions of Columbia county May T. 1870. The Defendant is we believe, a citizen of Fishingcreek township, and not of Scott township. We give this explanation because of the identity of two persons.

SOME editors know how to mix things well; others mix them apparently without any special view to the pleasing of all their readers. For instance, the editor of the Danbury (Ct.) News says:—"Sunday being a balmy day, the styles were brought out. The most richly dressed lady we saw is the wife of a man who has owed this office $13 for nearly three years. He says he cannot raise the money, and we believe him."

CHURCH NOTICE.—Providence permitting, the Lecture-room of the new M. E. Church at Shickshinny, Luzerne Co., Pa. will be opened for divine service on Sunday, May 22. Rev. R. L. Dashiell, D. D., Rev. S. Barnes and others have been engaged for the occasion. Services at 10 a. m., 3 p. m., and 7½ p. m. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

E. H. YOCUM, Pastor.

SCHUYLER & LOW, of Orangeville manufacture the best Plows in the Country, and if you do not believe it they will give you twenty five dollars to bring a man that will beat them, providing that you will give them the same amount if you are beat. Their two horse corn plows and one horse cultivators are just the thing for the Farmer, and their Threshing Machines, Cleaners and Tread-Powers, work complete.

ELECTION OF SCHOOL DIRECTORS.—A bill was passed by the late Legislature providing that in the next election for school directors in each school district in the Commonwealth, and annually thereafter, the qualified electors thereof shall elect two sober, intelligent and competent persons to serve as school directors for three years; that each elector shall vote for one person only, and the two persons having the highest number of votes shall be declared school directors for three years. This bill will have the effect of giving both political parties an equal representation in the board.—Exchange.

The Governor has signed no such bill and therefore the law remains unchanged.

MEETING OF THE BAR.—A meeting of the Bar of Columbia county was held in the counsel room Wednesday evening May, 4 1870.

Mr. Jackson was chosen president and C. G. Barkley Secretary.

On motion of Mr. Knorr it was resolved that a Bar Association be organized. The chair appointed Messrs. Robison, Clark and Little a committee, to draft by-laws for the government of the Association, with directions to report at the next meeting of the Bar. Mr. Clark requested to be excused for service in the committee on account of business which would require his absence from home. On motion Mr. Jackson was chosen to fill his place.

Mr. Robison, Chairman of the Library Committee reported that over four hundred dollars have been collected for Library purposes, and stated that the Committee desired an expression of opinion of the members of the Bar as to the expenditure of the same.

Adjourned to meet at 8 o'clock Friday evening June 3rd.

C. G. BARKLEY, Sec'y.

BLOOMSBURG DEFENDED.—Some enterprising young gentleman in town appears to have been writing Col. Forney in vindication of the respectability, importance, prosperity, loyalty, expansiveness, and political importance of Bloomsburg. Some one in the columns of the Press had referred to our town as a "mountain-locked village shut off from intercourse with the active world;" whereupon our vindicator explains that all this is a mistake. One point of his lucubration may be mentioned. He asserts that the Democrats of the County did not like Bloomsburg, and that no grand jury would give a Borough charter by reason of political hostility, &c. It might be well for some other enterprising correspondent to inform Col. Forney that this also is a complete mistake; that the division upon the Borough question did not divide our people politically; that the most active and influential opponent of incorporation was Mr. Paxton, manager of the Irondale Company; that both newspapers in town supported incorporation; that the main objection to the borough as proposed was one of boundary, and that the difficulty was solved by an act of assembly including the whole township, which the Court could not authorize under general laws. But perhaps the explanation is hardly necessary.

DESTRUCTIVE STORM.—The storm which prevailed on Sunday last was exceedingly severe in Philadelphia being accompanied by the most destructive fall of hail ever known there. The hail stones were from the size of a pea to six or seven inches in circumference. The papers speak of one which was eleven inches in circumference. The loss is immense in the line of glass. It is said that there is not a pane of glass left in any of the conservatories or hot houses in the city. Many public buildings had every window light broken on the side towards the storm. There is an almost total destruction of fruit trees on the outskirts of the city, the blossoms being completely stripped from the trees. Some serious accidents are reported principally caused by runaway horses, of which there were many in the streets. Some idea of the force with which these hail stones fell may be formed from the fact that a gentleman who was struck on the back of the head by one of unusual size was instantly knocked down; a similar accident happened to a lady; and a driver whose hat was blown off was so seriously cut about the head as to require medical attendance. The storm though severe here was not attended by hail, but we have heard that in the upper part of the county a few small hail stones fell.

PROTECTION OF TIMBERLANDS.—The following bill for the better protection of timberlands in this Commonwealth, drawn up and presented in the House by Mr. Creitz, one of the members from Lehigh county, passed both branches, and is now a law. The act is a timely one, as the destruction of timber by fire through carelessness annually amounts to hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Whereas, It is important to the people of the State that timber lands should be protected from fire, which owing to malicious conduct and carelessness of individuals is causing vast havoc to the young growing timber, especially upon our mountains, therefore

SEC. 1. Be it enacted, &c., that it shall be the duty of the Commissioners of the several Counties of the Commonwealth to appoint persons under oath whose duty it shall be to ferret out and bring to punishment all persons who either wilfully or otherwise cause the burning of timber lands, and to take measures to have such fires extinguished where it can be done, the expenses thereof to be paid out of the county treasury, the unseated land tax to be first applied to such expenses.

SEC. 2. That the provisions of the act of 9th of April, 1869, entitled "An Act to prevent the firing of mountains and other wild lands in the county of Union," be and the same is hereby extended to all the counties of this Commonwealth.

DR T. C. MCHENRY, having permanently located in the town of Benton, offers his professional services to the citizens of that place and vicinity. All calls either by day or night answered promptly. Office at J. J. McHenry's.

PARIS BY SUNLIGHT AND GASLIGHT.—This is the title of the most complete and attractive book of the day, issued by the National Publishing Company of Philadelphia. It is a large volume of over 800 pages, magnificently illustrated with one hundred and fifty fine engravings, by the best French artists, and from the pen of a writer who knows Paris well. It is absorbing and entertaining in a high degree, for besides containing a vast amount of instruction, it abounds in brilliant and thrilling descriptions of the darker sides of Parisian life. The reader is carried into the dark and squalid quarters of the Rag-pickers, and is introduced to the houses of the sad children of poverty; the most noted Lorettes and queens of the Demi-monde are portrayed with perfect truthfulness; the terrible inroads which vice of all kinds has made in French society, is shown with a startling vigor; Mabille and its gaities, with the voluptuous Can-can are brought home to him; and the mad revels of the carnivals are reproduced with great accuracy. The book is, indeed, Paris photographed, and is as attractive and spicy to the readers as the city itself to the American visitor. It is brim full of the pleasantest historical instruction, and no one possessing a library should fail to place it on his shelves. It is gotten up in exquisite taste by the Publishers and is quite as attractive externally as internally. Amongst the illustrations we notice the names of Gustave Dore, De Bar, Fichot, Clerget, and Therond—than whom France has given no more brilliant and successful workers in the art of engraving. James D. M'Cabe, Jr. is the author. It is sold only by subscription. Agents are wanted in each County.

KEEP YOUR FAMILY PAPER.—The last that should be given up, in a well organized family, is the regular, weekly, local paper. Times may be hard and money scarce, but in the midst of the greatest financial distress, the most difficult thing to dispense with is the family newspaper. There are few persons who will do it under any circumstances, and the wisdom of their decision is manifest. The newspaper is a man at the lookout. It keeps the farmer advised of the changes and fluctuations of the markets; of the current news and items of the day; of the regulations of the financial policy of the country; of everything that pertains to the farming and business interests, and is, therefore, a guide board which in hard times is the best friend and counsellor. It is valuable on account of the information it brings regularly to our doors and which if sought after elsewhere could not be obtained for ten times the amount of a year's subscription. None but the hopelessly ignorant, will stop their newspaper on account of the hard times. When they do so they throw away and rule out of their family the only thing which may save them in an extremity. The newspaper costs a very small sum, and yet very often by containing a piece of information valuable to farmers and business men, may save him thousands of dollars. If economy and retrenchment are necessary in your expenditures, commence elsewhere than with the family newspaper. It would be like lopping off the head of a fowl to save the rest of the body from destruction—like killing the goose that lays the golden egg to save the few grains of corn required for its nourishment. The newspaper not only keeps you advised of the state of the market and contains information that touches upon your every day interests, but is, at the same time, an educator in your family. Your wives and children read it and are enlightened. The latest inventions and discoveries in agriculture, the arts and sciences, find a place in its columns and by filing it away, you have a yearly register of events and things to which you can always refer with pleasure and profit. It is the greatest of temporal as the Bible is the greatest of spiritual blessings; never to be parted with while the eyes can read and the mind has the capacity to comprehend.

TREASURER'S SALE

OF UNSEATED LANDS IN COLUMBIA CO.

Agreeably to the provisions of an Act of Assembly entitled an Act directing the mode of selling unseated lands for taxes and other purposes, passed the thirteenth day of March, 1815, and the further supplements thereto passed on the 13th day of March, 1817, and the 25th day of March, 1821, and the 9th day of March, 1847, the Treasurer of Columbia county, hereby gives notice to all persons concerned therein, that unless the County, Road, School, Poor, County and State taxes due on the following tracts of unseated lands, situate in Columbia county, are paid before the day of sale, the whole or such parts of each tract as will pay the costs chargable thereon, will be sold at the Court House, in the town of Bloomsburg, Pa., on the 13th day of June, 1870, and to continue by adjournment, from day to day for arrearages of taxes due said County, and costs accrued on each tract respectively.

Shaking and Burning.

It is not necessary to journey from the tropics to Alaska in order to experience the extremes of heat and cold. Thousands undergo all the inconveniences of this thermometrical change every day, or every other day, as the case may be, without the trouble of moving over the threshold. A word with these involuntary shakers. What are they doing to expedite their return to a medium temperature?—to break the chills and banish the fever? Are they dosing themselves with quinine, thereby imperiling the soundness of their bones and impairing the vigor of their brains and nervous system? Some of them are, no doubt, but not the majority of them, it is believed. The value of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as a harmless and certain specific for fever and ague is understood and appreciated in all parts of the country where intermittents prevail. The residents of such localities begin to take it early in the spring as a protection against the miasma by which they are surrounded; not all of them, perhaps, for a blind adherence to error is the specialty of some people, but the greater number.

If there is any fixed fact in therapeutics, it is this: that the Bitters are a far better safeguard against all the varieties of periodic maladies produced by unwholesome exhalations than any drug or compound in the materia medica of the profession. This assertion is made with all due respect to the faculty, but being an important truth, and one that nearly concerns the health of large settlements in various parts of the country, and indeed of the public at large, it is made fearlessly. Founded on ample and unimpeachable testimony, it defies disproval.

To break up chills and fevers, as well as to prevent them, there is nothing so reliable as this wholesome vegetable restorative.

FARMER'S COLUMN.

Spring Sowing of Corn.

During the summer season or beginning of Autumn we seldom escape more or less drought. Sometimes, as during the latter part of August, 1869, it is so serious as materially to injure the pasturage and to occasion a great reduction in the amount of milk and butter. During the trying portion of last year I was much pleased to see that numbers of farmers in this neighborhood had that sufficient foresight greatly to diminish the evil. This was accomplished by the spring sowing of Indian corn, to be cut while green and given to the cows. Some persons sowed the corn thickly, others drilled it in; the latter having the advantage of working with a cultivator while young, lessening the weeds, keeping the ground in better condition, and producing a heavier crop. What anxiety may be prevented by this prudent management, and how greatly it adds to the comfort of the cattle at a time when the grass is so dried, that it burns like tinder on the application of fire. Sometimes the rains are supplied so copiously, that the pasture does not fail until the approach of winter. When such is the case, the green corn may remain till the failure of grass from frost, and then be used for soiling, or it may be cut, dried, and kept for winter, when it will be found much more nourishing for the cows than fodder from corn, which has ripened the grain. The usual quantity for sowing broadcast is from three to four bushels; drilled in, half that amount will suffice. Farmers who have tried this method of keeping up their supply of milk, and butter, during the scorching heat of summer, or after autumn frosts have diminished the crop of grass, I think will never again depend upon uncertain pasture. The amount of land and seed required is certainly insignificant, compared with the return which it affords, to say nothing of the feeling of satisfaction which it produces, to see animals secure from the misery of a short allowance of food. It will be a very great improvement in American husbandry, when the cattle shall not only be supplied liberally during the grazing season with green food for soiling, but also with a sufficiency of roots, beets, carrots or turnips, to alternate with the dry food of winter.

Dark Stables.

Any person who has felt the pain and inconvenience of coming suddenly from a dark room into the full blaze of day, will easily conceive the necessity of lighting a stable in a proper manner. This is too often neglected in confined stables, and the consequences are most distressing to a human observer. The poor horse, led suddenly out to his work, shows his pain quickly in unmistakeable expressions, stumbles, and runs against anything that may happen to be near, until the eye has in some degree accommodated itself to the new circumstances under which it is placed. Nor is this all. By a continuance of this change from darkness to sudden daylight, the eyes become seriously injured.

The retina, or sensitive nerve, becomes dull, and more or less useless; the horse's sight is injured; he starts and shies at objects which he sees imperfectly; and many a rider who has received a dangerous injury has to thank his inattention to this simple cause, rather than any vicious habit of the animal, to which it has been attributed.

Blindness is almost certain to be caused by inattention to the above caution; but even blindness is less dangerous to the rider than imperfect sight.—American Stock Journal.

BROOM-CORN—Its Cultivation.—A correspondent of the Inquirer writing from Nine Points, Lancaster county says:

Broom-corn has not received the cultivation and attention which its importance in the family of domestic plants, and the high price which it commands, entitles it to. To most farmers it is a crop about which they have little experience and information; and now, that its cultivation is beginning to be regarded profitable, many inquiries are made concerning it. As regards its cultivation, that is the same as other corn; the only difference is, it must be planted thicker. Manufacturers like the brush fine, and consequently the corn ought to be planted pretty thick in the row, and cut off before it is fully ripe, about the beginning of September; then the brush will have a uniform color, which is very desirable, as brooms of a uniform greenish color will command a higher price in the city. A good acre can bring from five hundred to a thousand pounds of brush, which brings now in Philadelphia twenty cents per pound, or four hundred dollars per ton. Broom corn is now the most profitable crop that the farmer can raise.

Lazy Farmers.

Laziness prevents a man from getting off his horse to put up the first rail that gets knocked off the fence, and through this lazy neglect a whole field of corn is seriously damaged.

Laziness keeps a man from driving one nail when one would do, and finally costs a carpenter's bill for extensive repairs.

Laziness allows a gate to get off the hinges and lie in the mud, or stand propped by rails—or a stable to wreck and damage hundreds of dollars worth of provender.

Laziness, in short, is the right and proper name for nine-tenths of the excuses given for bad farming. But by far the most prolific of the many wastes that are due to laziness is the waste of ignorance. But the waste is in itself so great, and has so many ramifications, that we shall have to defer its discussion for another time.

To Prevent Flies from Teasing Horses

Take two or three small handfuls of walnut leaves, upon which pour two or three quarts of cold water; let it infuse one night, and pour the whole next morning into a kettle and let it boil for a quarter of an hour. When cold it will be fit for use. No more is required than to moisten a sponge, and before the horse goes out of the stable, let those parts which are most irritable be smeared over with the liquor, viz., between and upon the ears, the neck, the flanks, &c. Not only the lady or gentleman who rides out for pleasure will derive benefit from the walnut leaves thus prepared, but the coachman, the wagoner, and all others who use horses during the hot months.

THE YOUNG FOLKS.

Ten Little Injuns,

Ten little Injuns standing in a line
One toddled home and then there were nine.
Nine little Injuns swinging on a gate,
One tumbled off and then there were eight.

Eight little Injuns never heard of heaven,
One kicked the bucket and then there were seven.
Seven little Injuns cutting up tricks,
One broke his neck and then there were six.

Six little Injuns kicking all alive,
One went to bed and then there were five,
Five little Injuns on a cellar door,
One tumbled in, and then there were four.

Four little Injuns out on a spree,
One dead drunk, and then there were three,
Three little Injuns out in a canoe,
One tumbled overboard, and then there were two.

Two little Injuns foolin' with a gun,
One shot the other, and then there was one,
One little Injun livin' all alone,
He got married, and then there were none.

FIRST CHORUS.

One little, two little, three little, four little, five little Injun boys,
Six little, seven little, eight little, nine little, ten little Injun boys.

ENCORE VERSE.

One little Injun with his little wife,
Lived in a wigwam the balance of his life,
One daddy Injun, and one mammy squaw,
Soon raised a family of ten Injuns more.

SECOND CHORUS.

One little, two little, three little, four little, five little Injuns more,
Six little, seven little, eight little, nine little, ten little Injuns more.

About Minnie Goldwing.

A TRUE STORY. BY JULIA M. THAYER.

"O mamma," cried Rosa, with a little scream, and a sudden rush across the room, "my birdie! my birdie! I do believe it is dead! See! it doesn't move at all, but remains perfectly still at the bottom of the cage!"

The cage was quickly lifted down, and, true enough, there lay Minnie Goldwing, stiff and stark. Not a feather fluttered, the white claws were curled up pathetically, and the dear, little beads of eyes were covered by the filmy lids.

"O, my pet! my dear, dainty darling! what shall I do, mamma?" and Rosa threw herself into mamma's arms, weeping violently; nor were mamma's eyes quite dry, if the truth be told.

Rosa was the first to speak.

"Just yesterday," she murmured, mournfully, "sweet, little Minnie was hopping about, singing so happily! such a tame little thing, and loved me so dearly! Mamma, what did she die for?" and floods of tears burst forth anew.

"Not certainly for want of loving care, Rosa; that is one comfort. You see there is a sweet drop at the bottom of every bitter cup, if you could only find it."

But Rosa refused to be comforted, and mamma held her close to her tender heart, feeling very sorry for her little girl; for she knew this was a real and bitter grief. At last she said,

"Come, darling, dry your eyes, you have other pets to love, and many precious things left to enjoy."

"Nothing like birdie," sobbed the child.

"There's Tina, the dear old kitten."

"I would much rather it had been she," persisted Rosa.

"And a host of doll babies."

"They are senseless, nonsensical things," cried Rosa. "O mamma, if she had ever so teenty weenty a soul, I wouldn't mind it; but now I can never, never have my darling Minnie again."

"Rosa," said mamma thoughtfully, "in that bright hereafter, where all tears are wiped from our eyes, no good thing will be denied us. And who shall say that there your birdie, a little, winged joy, may not come flying at your call, and warble its own sweet song for you? Does that comfort you?"

"And O, I know what my precious canary will be changed into then," said Rosa, smiling brightly through her tears; "a Bird of Paradise!" and with that she slid softly down.

Rosa now seemed to find a mournful pleasure in preparing for the burial of her pet. First she explored her own little sanctum, and brought thence a small comfit box, prettily ornamented with a bright bouquet of flowers. She then searched mamma's bureau for a bit of soft, white merino, and a tuft of snowy cotton. The box lined and cushioned, Rosa, with a very sad face, laid in it the dead bird. Then she scraped and polished a piece of petrified wood, from her cabinet, for a headstone.

Not far from the house is a wild bit of land, in springtime covered with violets and buttercups. There Rosa has consigned to mother earth many a dead bird and tiny quadruped. In this little cemetery lies one of Tiny Velvet's victims, a dear little squirrel. Rosa placed this epitaph over him:

"BUNNY BRIGHT,
Died of a kitten's bite,
Sept. 12th, at night."

And over a precious, little, dead mouse, taken out of a trap, she wrote:

Mousie, you died
Your stomach to appease;
But all in vain—
You couldn't get the cheese."

There is another monument to the Unknown. Epitaph—

"Alone,
Unknown,
Here they lie,
Fast asleep—
Let us weep!
my!"

That last doesn't sound one bit like Rosa, however.

It is now a grave question with the little girl, whether to bury Minnie in this sacred spot, or some distance away, in a little, shaded square, formed by four beautiful flowering shrubs, on the lawn.

What mournful pleasure she takes in all these touching arrangements; and yet her loving heart is not satisfied. For a long time she has been sitting with a sheet of drawing paper before her, pencil in hand. Peeping over her shoulder, I see, O, such a beautiful picture! Surely there is inspiration—the inspiration of grief. Minnie lying in a little, open, flower-decked coffin; a lovely cherub at the head, and two others hovering above, dropping a garland upon her bosom; and near the foot sitting all forlorn upon a stone, was the dearest little sprite, crying ready to break his heart.

Raphael might have done better, but Rosa's mamma declares that she shall think this the nicest picture in the world, even if she lives to be a thousand years old.

A SMART boy was asked by his father what business he followed. "The marble business," replied young hopeful; and I want ten cents to buy stock." He got it.

PHOENIX PECTORAL CURES COUGH!

25 CENTS.

$1.00

The Phoenix Pectoral will cure the diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Colds, Cough, Croup, Asthma, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Sore Throat Hoarseness, Whooping Cough, and Pulmonary Consumption. This medicine is prepared by Dr. Levi Oberholtzer of Philadelphia, and formerly of Phoenixville, Pa., and although it has only been offered for five years, more than one million bottles have already been sold, and the demand for it is increasing every day. Many of the Retail Druggists buy it in lots of five gross, and not a few of the Country Storekeepers try one gross at a time. Nearly every one who has ever sold it testifies to its popularity, and nearly all who have used it, bear testimony to its wonderful power in curing Cough. We are confident that there is no known medicine of such great value to the community as the Phoenix Pectoral.

It has cured cases of the most painful and distressing cough, of years standing.

It has given instant relief in spells of coughing.

It has instantly stopped the paroxysm of Whooping Cough, and greatly shortened its duration.

It has cured Croup in a few minutes.

Consumption has been cured by it, where all other remedies had failed to do good.

Hoarseness has been cured by it in a single night.

Many physicians recommend it, and others use it themselves and administer it in their practice while others oppose it because it takes away their business.

We recommend it to our readers and for further particulars, would refer you to the circular around the bottle where you will find numerous certificates given by persons who have used it.

It is so pleasant to the taste that children cry for it.

It is a stimulating expectorant, giving strength at the same time that it allays the cough.

The proprietor of this medicine has so much confidence in its curative powers from the testimony of thousands who have used it that the money will be refunded to any purchaser who is not satisfied with the effects.

It is so cheap that all can buy it.

Price 25 Cents, Large Bottles $1.00

It is prepared only by

PROF. E. J. SCHOONOVER, Principal,
MRS. E. J. SCHOONOVER, Preceptress,

This institution, for the education of young Ladies and Gentlemen, will re-open under charge of Prof. Schoonover, on MONDAY April 4, 1870. Teachers, of acknowledged ability and high order of talent, will be employed in each department, and no effort spared to secure to pupils thorough and judicious culture.

The course of instruction will include all the branches usually taught in High Schools and Seminaries of the first rank.

Special attention given to Normal School training and Commercial instruction.

TERMS:

Primary Department..........$3 to $5 per Quarter
Higher Branches..........$6 to $8 per Quarter

LOCATION:—This excellent institution is located in a pleasant village of about six hundred inhabitants—free from the temptations of a large city—about six miles from the Rail with daily communication to the different roads. The buildings are situated upon an elevation, surrounded by a beautiful grove. and perfectly healthy.

CALENDAR FOR 1870:—Spring session begins April 4th, 1870 and continues 13 weeks, following which there will be a vacation of six weeks. Fall term commences August 15, 1870, continuing 11 weeks. Winter term opens November 7, 1870 continuing 11 weeks.

EXPENSES:—Board can be obtained in private families at from $2.50 to $4.00 per week, or desirable rooms will be furnished to students wishing to provide for themselves.

Scholars will be admitted at any time during the session although it is preferable to commence with the term.

Sewing Machines.

GROVER & BAKER'S
SEWING MACHINES.

The following are selected from thousands of testimonials of similar character, as expressive of the reasons for the preference for the GROVER & BAKER Machines over all others.

* * * "I like the Grover & Baker Machine, in the first place, because, if I had any other, I should still want a Grover & Baker, and having a Grover & Baker, it answers the purpose of all the rest. It does a greater variety of work and it is easier to learn than any other."—[Mrs. J. C. Croly (Jenny June).

* * * "I have had several years' experience with a Grover & Baker Machine, which has given me great satisfaction. I think the Grover & Baker Machine is more easily managed, and less liable to get out of order. I prefer the Grover & Baker, decidedly."—[Mrs. Dr. Watts, New York.

* * * "I have had one in my family for two years; and from what I know of its workings, and from the testimony of many of my friends who use the same, I can hardly see how anything could be more complete or give better satisfaction."—[Mrs. General Grant.

* * * "I believe it to be the best, all things considered, of any that I have known. It is very simple and easily learned; the sewing from the ordinary spools is a great advantage; the stitch is entirely reliable; it does ornamental work beautifully; it is not liable to get out of order."—[Mrs. A. M. Spooner, ... Brooklyn;

* * * "I am acquainted with the working of the principal machines; and I prefer the Grover & Baker to them all, because I consider the stitch more elastic. I have work now in the house which was done nine years ago, which is still good.—[Mrs. Dr. McCready, No. ... East Twenty-third Street New York.

* * * "More than two-thirds of all the sewing done in my family for the last two years has been done by Grover & Baker's Machine, and I never had a garment rip or need mending, except those rents which frolicsome boys will make in ... cloth. It is in my opinion by far the most ... able of any I have tried."—[Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher.

* * * "The Grover & Baker Sewing Machine has rendered in every respect the most perfect satisfaction. It combines so many advantages with beauty of execution and economy ... that it is a necessity in every household."—[Mrs. Governor Geary, Harrisburg, Pa.

* * * "I have had the Grover & Baker Machine for ten or twelve years in constant use in my house. I have seen and known every kind of family sewing, both personal and household accomplished upon the Grover & Baker Machine to the entire satisfaction of all who were concerned."—[Rev. Stephen H. Tyng.

* * * "I find the Grover & Baker stitch will wear as long as the garments do—outwear the garment in fact. The stitch will not break on bias seams, when stretched, as others do, and neither does it draw the work."—[Mrs. Dr. ... ing, 4 East Twenty-fourth Street, New York.

* * * "We have a Grover & Baker Sewing Machine for seven years in constant use, hemming, felling, tucking, and everything that the hand can do. It is preferred over all others on account of its durability of work, elasticity, and strength of stitch, ease of movement, and simplicity of construction."—[Mrs. Gen. Buel.

* * * "There could be no greater boon to a family than a Grover & Baker Sewing Machine. I have used one for the last nine or ten years, and I think it is decidedly the best family Sewing Machine."—Mrs. Alice B. Whipple, wife of Rev. Dr. Whipple, Sec. Am. Miss. Association.

* * * "I have had an opportunity of examining and using other varieties of machines; but I very much prefer the Grover & Baker stitch, for strength, elasticity, and beauty. I have seen no other machine so simple in its construction, or so easily understood and kept in order."—Mrs. E. D. Sanborn, St. Louis.

* * * "During the past eleven years I have had a Grover & Baker Sewing Machine in constant use, and it has never required the least repair. I take great pleasure in recommending the Grover & Baker as the very best sewing machine for family use."—[Mrs. J. G. Phyfe, ... Twelfth street, New York.

* * * "It is so simple in its structure that it is exceedingly difficult to get it out of order. My ... of my little girls—one five-and-a-half and the other four years—can sew straight seams on it without assistance."—[Mrs. A. C. Foss, wife of Rev. Archibald C. Foss, 200 West Thirtieth St. New York.

* * * "The Grover & Baker Machine is such a benefit to mankind that I often feel as though it would do me good to trumpet its praises far and near. The one I have is of the plainest kind, but I would not exchange it for the most expensive I ever saw of any other make."—[Mrs. W... wife of Prof. Wilson, of Hobart College.

* * * "The simplicity of its construction, the facility with which its use is acquired, the beauty, strength, and elasticity of its stitch, and its adaptability to all kinds of work, are qualities which do not all belong at once to any other machine."—Prof. Henshaw, of Williston Seminary.

* * * "My wife is delighted with her Grover & Baker Sewing Machine. She prefers the Grover & Baker to any other she has seen."—Rev. ... Fisher, Philadelphia Conference.

* * * "We have used one of Grover & Baker's Sewing Machines for about ten years, and consider it cannot be excelled. It runs smoothly, was never out of repair, and gives very good satisfaction."—[Mr. Edwin Hunt, 81 Lake St. Chicago.

The Grover and Baker Sewing Machine Company manufacture both the Elastic Stitch and Lock Stitch Machines, and offer the public the choice of the best machines of both kinds, at their establishments in all the large cities and through agencies in nearly all towns throughout the country. Price Lists and samples of sewing in both stitches furnished on application to Grover & Baker S. M. Co., Philadelphia, or to
